BOOK 1: 31 Ways to Describe a Goat
Problem: You start describing a character and get writers block. Solution: You flip to a random page of 31 Ways to Describe a Goat and get inspired. This book is not about a goat. Its about making your life easier. You will get writers block writing descriptions and this book will ease that suffering. You will write faster than ever. Faster writing means more books. More books means more money. Dont fear the blank page. Dominate it. BOOK 2: Conflict Dialogue Any scene where two characters are talking about a third is a crock of shit. David Mamet Dont write a crock of shit. Write drama. The secret to drama is conflict. Inside you will find 2,273 examples of conflict dialogue from Oscar-winning movies like The Departed, and Emmy-winning TV shows like Fargo. EXAMPLES: Who the f--k are you? Im the guy who does his job, you must be the other guy. You guarding the fence, or are you guarding him? You are rude and uncouth and presumptuous. Why cant you just answer the question? Youre a shit cop, you know that right? Well Im getting promoted next month so how bad can I be? That guy is the worst actor Ive ever seen in my life. The blood coming out of his ear was the most honest thing hes done so far.
