

Proceedings of the Bench and Bar of New Jersey: On the Death of the Hon. Garret D. Wall (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from Proceedings of the Bench and Bar of New Jersey: On the Death of the Hon. Garret D. Wall At the opening of the several Courts of the County of Burlington, on Saturday morning the 23d of November, the death of the Hon. Garret D. Wall was announced by John C. Ten Eyck, Esq. who moved the adjournment of the Courts. Mr. Ten Eyck said -May it please your Honors - I hardly know why it is that I have been selected to perform this, one of the saddest acts of my professional life. Since the last adjournment of this Court, the head, the father, the patriarch of our little bar, if not of the bar of the State, has fallen. Garret D. Wall died last night, at his residence, in the city of Burlington, full of years and of honors. His voice, so cheering in the social circle, so frank and kindly in his daily intercourse, so familiar to our halls of slate and justice, - his voice, that has so often filled this very room with eloquence and wisdom, is hushed and mute in death! His manly form, once erect and dignified, and always winning - that filled us all with joy at his approach, now lowly lies, heavy and cold and still. His sun has gone down forever! and may I not say, with it has set the sun and centre of our own afflicted brotherhood. His course has been long, and useful, and honorable. He was not perfect; no man is perfect; but he was a pure patriot, a true Jerseyman, an able statesman, a sound lawyer, and a finished gentleman. Before I came to the bar, his fame had reached its height; with Stockton and Ewing, and Griffith and Southard, and Hornblower and Frelinghuysen, and Scott and Wood and Williamson, he was esteemed amongst the noblest of them all.
