

Computer Privacy & Security Essential Training

The Internet is an unmatched resource for home, education, and business. And no matter where and how you are using the Internet, it is critical that you protect your privacy and security while you are online. Computer Privacy & Security Essential Training is a movie-based tutorial designed for both novice and experienced Windows or Macintosh users who want to avoid the varied security issues plaguing most Internet-connected computers. Instructor Patrick Crispen shows you how to effectively resolve most of your computers vulnerabilities, covering physical security, malware, the hidden tracking features in Microsoft Office, and the five things you must do each week to minimize the chances that your computer will be compromised.
