

The Satire of John Marston: A Dissertation Presented to the Faculty of Princeton University in Candidacy for the Degree of Doctor of Philosophy (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from The Satire of John Marston: A Dissertation Presented to the Faculty of Princeton University in Candidacy for the Degree of Doctor of Philosophy

John Marston was born about 1575 and died June 25, 1634. He came of good family and was a gentleman. This was acknowledged even by his enemy, Jonson, who in fact lays stress upon Marston's own insistence upon his gentility. His family was an old Shropshire one; a Robertus de Marston is mentioned in 1307. The dramatist's great-grandfather was also a John Marston whose son Ralph was of Shropshire, while the next generation, John, the poet's father, was of Coventry. The dramatist's mother, Mary Guarsi or Guersie, was probably the descendent of Balthazar Guarsi, a man of some prominence, living in the reign of Henry VIII. Andrew Guarsi, Marston's grandfather, who died in 1561, was probably Balthazar's son. He bequeathed to his daughter Mary ?100, to be paid when she should reach the age of eighteen, or upon her marriage. This Mary Marston, who was the poet's mother, died June 12, 1621. John Marston, the poet's father, entered the Middle Temple in 1570. He seems to have moved to Coventry soon after, though he kept up his connections with London. In his will he calls himself of city of Coventry Gent. About the Publisher
